Nevada Irrigation District

Staff Report

TO: Board of Directors

FROM: Greg Jones, Assistant General Manager

DATE: October 8, 2025

SUBJECT: Water Professionals Week

ADMINISTRATION

RECOMMENDATION:
Adopt a Resolution recognizing October 4-12, 2025, as Water Professionals Appreciation Week.

BACKGROUND:
The California Legislature, in 2017, officially designated the first week of October as California Water Professionals Appreciation Week.

This annual event, championed by organizations like the Association of California Water Agencies (ACWA) and the California Water Environment Association (CWEA), serves to recognize the essential work of water industry professionals and the local agencies that provide public water, wastewater, and recycled water services to the state's communities. This week offers an opportunity to recognize the essential role of water industry workers in delivering safe, reliable services.

NID has over 200 employees dedicated to ensuring the delivery of clean, reliable, and quality drinking water for our customers. NID's water professionals work 24/7 to plan for the future, maintain and upgrade the system, and improve the safety and resiliency of our local water supplies for our communities.

NID water professionals, thank you for all you do for this community.

RESOLUTION NO. 2025-50

OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF THE NEVADA IRRIGATION DISTRICT

RESOLUTION OF THE NEVADA IRRIGATION DISTRICT RECOGNIZING WATER PROFESSIONALS APPRECIATION WEEK: October 4–12, 2025

WHEREAS, water is the lifeblood of California, and without safe and reliable water—from raw water used in agriculture to treated water delivered to our homes—no community can thrive; and

WHEREAS, the Nevada Irrigation District, located in the Sierra Nevada foothills, plays a vital role in delivering both raw water for irrigation and treated water for drinking to residents, farms, and businesses throughout the region; and

WHEREAS, the essential work of water professionals ensures that the District's customers receive high-quality, dependable water service every day, supporting public health, agriculture, fire protection, and economic stability; and

WHEREAS, skilled and dedicated water professionals at Nevada Irrigation District help maintain some of the highest drinking water quality standards in the nation through constant monitoring, testing, treatment, and infrastructure maintenance; and

WHEREAS, water may travel great distances—through rivers, canals, reservoirs, and pipelines—before reaching the end user, and each step in this complex system is carefully managed by trained experts committed to safety and efficiency; and

WHEREAS, Nevada Irrigation District professionals work around the clock to plan for future water needs, protect local water resources, and ensure the long-term resilience of the region's water supply, while also maintaining and upgrading essential systems; and

WHEREAS, according to the Public Policy Institute of California, local water and wastewater agencies invest over $25 billion annually statewide in projects that protect public health, enhance water supply reliability, safeguard the environment, and support critical services such as groundwater recharge, wastewater treatment, and flood protection; and

WHEREAS, thousands of water industry professionals across California, including those at Nevada Irrigation District, have dedicated their careers to ensuring that water services remain uninterrupted, safe, and sustainable for generations to come.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that the Nevada Irrigation District hereby declares October 4–12, 2025 as Water Professionals Appreciation Week and extends its sincere gratitude and appreciation to the dedicated water and wastewater professionals who work tirelessly to provide essential services to our community every day.
